Research grants awarded to two UT Southwestern Orthopaedic Surgery and Scottish Rite Faculty

UT Southwestern Orthopaedic Surgery Associate Professors and Scottish Rite for Children faculty, Jaysson Brooks, M.D. and William Morris, M.D. were awarded research grants that will further their orthopaedic surgery research focus.

Dr. Brooks was awarded an OREF grant for his project on understanding factors influencing attrition in orthopedic surgical training. Dr. Morris was awarded a POSNA grant as part of the St. Giles New Investigator Award. This grant will allow Dr. Morris to further his study on long term functional outcome of late detected DDH.

Congratulations to Drs. Brooks and Morris on their achievements and making an impact in orthopaedic surgery research.

Prevalence of Asymptomatic Acetabular Labrum Abnormalities in the Active Pediatric Population

The prevalence of labral tears in asymptomatic active adults has been reported, but the prevalence of labral tears and other incidental hip lesions in the asymptomatic active pediatric population remains unclear. The purpose of this study was to determine the prevalence of hip abnormalities detected on 3T MRI in an active pediatric population with no hip symptoms and to compare with hip abnormalities found in children and adolescents who underwent an MRI for a hip-related condition.

Factors predicting manipulation under anesthesia after total knee replacement

Manipulation under anesthesia (MUA) is a standard and effective treatment to correct stiffness and improve range of motion (ROM) following total knee arthroplasty (TKA). Delayed MUA has been associated with increased rates of revision surgeries and infections. Early MUA has been shown to double the mean gain in flexion compared to delayed interventions.
